OPENING KEYNOTE

Connected but not Connected: Social Isolation and Health

Justin Moore MD FACP, Double Arrow Metabolism

Humans are social creatures – to survive and thrive we need connection and companionship throughout life. Social isolation has a profound effect on health and life expectancy, and is increasingly prevalent across age groups. Using data, Dr. Moore will illustrate the issues and contributing factors, then explore potential interventions, both clinical and social, for persons who feel isolated and lonely.

Going Beyond Our Walls to Improve Community Health

November 18 | 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. | Hilton Garden Inn, 3320 S. 9th, Salina, KS

WORKSHOPS

Behavioral Health: The Importance of Prevention and the Role of Protective Factors

Chad Childs, Prevention Project Coordinator, WSU Community Engagement Institute

Patricia Houston, Promotion and Prevention Specialist, WSU Community Engagement Institute

Learn about behavioral health needs in Kansas, the importance of prevention efforts, and how protective factors play a key role in helping buffer problem outcomes and improving overall health and quality of life. This session will highlight available resources to support prevention and improve behavioral and mental health in local communities.

Building Partnerships Beyond Your Walls to Improve Health

Karen Braman, Executive Director, Kansas Hospital Association

Lisse Regehr, Executive Director, Thrive Allen County

This session will explore how Kansas communities are innovating to positively influence healthy behaviors.

Connecting Community Dots to Improve Early Childhood Programs: From Silos to Strategy

Donna Henry, Colby UMC

Travis Rickford, Executive Director, LiveWell Northwest Kansas

Julie Ross, Early Childhood/Pre-K Readiness/At-Risk Coordinator for Colby Public Schools

Every community comprises different entities such as churches, community organizations, schools, government offerings, and businesses. By connecting the dots and strengthening collaboration among these groups and individuals, Colby is working to enhance the well-being of young children and community residents. We will feature projects that have showcased increased connectivity including the Summer Diner, two community gardens, free cooking classes, a community-wide Back-to-School event, and strategic coordination with local and state partners.

Faith in Action: The Importance of Faith-Based Advocacy at State and Local Levels

Rabbi Moti Rieber, Executive Director, Kansas Interfaith Action

Marcus Winn, Kansas Organizer, MORE2

This session will highlight the key importance of the faith voice and faith-based advocacy, share examples of the work, and explore opportunities to get involved.

Improving Access and Enhancing Health: Faith-Based Advocacy for KanCare Expansion

Sheldon Weisgrau, Senior Policy Advisor, Alliance for a Healthy Kansas

Spencer Culver, Advocacy Specialist, Alliance for a Healthy Kansas

Kansas has an opportunity to expand KanCare, the state's Medicaid program, to cover an additional 150,000 Kansans. Among its many benefits, expansion would greatly increase the number of Kansans with health insurance coverage, provide financial stability to low-income families, and enhance the viability of rural hospitals and other health care providers. We will provide an update on the KanCare expansion campaign, share information from our Faith & Medicaid Expansion toolkit, and seek input for how to best incorporate faith-based messaging into advocacy.

Going Beyond Our Walls to Improve Community Health

November 18 | 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. | Hilton Garden Inn, 3320 S. 9th, Salina, KS

Introduction to the Neighboring Movement

Matthew Johnson, Neighborhood Animator and Co-Founder, NeighboringMovement.org

Learn how neighboring impacts public health and social capital within communities, and how to use effective practices and best principles of neighboring as a tool for community development. This session will explore the Neighboring Movement's evolving work in South Central Wichita and introduce strategies for faith communities to increase neighboring.

Planting Seeds to Better Your Community's Health

Shelley Rich, Director, Health & Wellness Coalition of Wichita

Learn how churches can effectively work with community-based organizations to promote health. This interactive presentation will include steps a faith-based community can take to promote physical activity and healthy eating, including resources ready to be implemented.

Voting Changing Lives: Nonpartisan Voter Engagement and Healthy Communities

Lindsey Behgam, Voter Engagement Director, Mainstream Education Foundation

Voter to Voter is an innovative, nonpartisan get-out-the-vote program that asks Kansans to connect with people in their community to encourage them to vote. Studies show that greater civic engagement leads to better health outcomes, and Voter to Voter is making a real difference in voter turnout. In 2018, when record turnout reached 56% in Kansas, Voter to Voter turned out 82% of its participants. Among infrequent voters, it was 75% compared to the state's 33% turnout. Learn more at votertovoter.org.

Why the Census Matters: Ensuring Everyone is Counted

Blanca Soto, Southwest KS Campaign Director, Kansas Appleseed; Monica Vargas-Huertas Esq., Political Director and Special Projects Assistant to the President, UFCW Local Two

Every 10 years, the Census Bureau takes a count of all people living in the United States, but many Kansas communities and populations are at risk of being undercounted. The census affects business planning, community development, funding for essential community programs (an estimated $4.5 billion in federal funding for Kansas) and our representation in Congress. Learn about the direct and indirect impact of the census on your community, and how you can help ensure that everyone living in Kansas is counted in 2020.

CLOSING KEYNOTE

Dreaming Together: How We Can Work Together to Improve Community Health

Jerry Jones, Director of Community Health, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Kansas City

Inspiring with lessons learned from his experiences working closely with hospitals, safety net clinics, academic institutions, public health, and funders, Jerry Jones will discuss ways faith communities can collaborate and build partnerships to improve social determinants of health - including by fostering authentic, trusted relationships across communities. Mr. Jones believes that faith communities are uniquely positioned to anchor efforts to lift hope and challenge what we see as possible in collectively meeting the needs of our neighbors.

for Medical Care, Inc. working to improve healthcare quality and outcomes in Kansas and regionally. As part of the KHA team, Karen has leadership roles in quality and patient safety, clinical data/analytics, physician leadership development, prescription drug-related issues, healthcare delivery system transformation and strategic planning.

Chad Childs MSFT, LCMFT is the Prevention Systems Project Coordinator for the Community Engagement Institute. Chad has over 17 years of experience in outpatient mental health and has management and leadership experience in other nonprofit organizations in the fields of higher education, child welfare and prevention. After earning a Bachelor's degree in Natural Sciences at Bethel College, Kansas, Chad earned a Master of Science in Family Therapy from Friends University in Wichita. He has experience volunteering for various agencies and has served as an adjunct professor and guest lecturer. Chad's career focus is offering respectful support to others overcoming barriers and improving their lives by using their strengths and the resources available to them. He has worked with those goals through a combination of providing direct services and facilitating larger system changes. He is interested in the integration of health and social services, science, and research, and values community efforts to make and sustain lasting changes for the better. Chad enjoys spending quality time with friends and family and doing his best to keep up with his incredible kids and all they do.

Spencer Culver is the Advocacy Specialist for the Alliance for a Healthy Kansas. The Alliance for a Healthy Kansas is a statewide coalition working throughout Kansas, encouraging people and organizations to promote policies that ensure everyone has the opportunity to attain their highest level of health. Spencer coordinates with grassroots advocates across the state, working to shape the public conversation around Medicaid expansion. Spencer, a native of Kansas City, graduated from the University of Wyoming with a Communication degree and returned to the Midwest to work in healthcare advocacy.

Donna Henry is a retired secondary English/Journalism teacher who spends her time now in various volunteer activities. She is a member of the Healthy Congregations Committee and youth director at Colby United Methodist Church, and a board member of Genesis-Thomas County Food Bank.

Patricia Houston MBA is the Promotion and Prevention Specialist for the Community Engagement Institute Prevention Initiative. She holds a Bachelor's Degree in Business from Wichita State University and a Master's Degree in Business Administration (MBA) from Baker University. She previously held professional positions as a Program Manager for the Kansas Reading Roadmap, Program Specialist with the City of Wichita in Neighborhood Services and as the Statewide Project Director for the federally funded Healthy Relationships Grant administered through Catholic Charities of Wichita. She currently and has for many years served on several community and non-profit boards and believes that through great collaborations and the combining of resources communities can be strengthened and made to thrive. Patricia loves spending time with her family and friends, volunteering for her church and various organizations that she is passionate about, reading fiction novels, and playing Top Golf!

Matthew Johnson is the Spiritual Formation Director of NeighboringMovement.org. He is the theorist of the Neighboring Movement team, but that beard is real. Matt loves music and plays several instruments, often while sitting out in the front yard. One of his favorite activities is asking great questions to discover who people are and how their passions can help shape the culture of SoCe. Matt is great at seeing big themes and convincing Adam to not get ahead of himself. When Matt isn't working in SoCe he is doing Spiritual Direction, teaching at Friends University, and writing. He is the author of "Worship" a book study in the Holy Living Series from Cokesbury.

Jerry Jones, Jr. is Director of Community Health for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Kansas City, a role which provides an opportunity to practice radical collaboration and blaze a new way forward for how payers work with patients and providers to address health inequity and the social determinants of health in our communities.

During his professional career, Jones has worked closely with hospitals, safety net clinics, academic institutions, public health departments and funders in designing improved health seeker and health provider experiences. Recent projects conducted under his leadership include: reducing disabilities and deaths related to diabetes, heart disease and stroke (Designing a Healthier Dotte/CDC 1422 grant), educational outreach, marketing and coordination of certified application assistance for the ACA Marketplace (Enroll Wyandotte/Kansas Assisters Network), connecting the newly insured to primary care physicians and chronic disease prevention programs (Take Charge), Wyandotte County Community Health Worker Initiative (a partnership with KC Care Clinic) and the Health Equity thru Action and Transformation (H.E.A.T. Project).

Prior to becoming an executive leader, Jones served as project manager experience for the Community Transformation Grant and CMMI Innovation Challenge Award in Kansas City, as well as lead organizer for several healthcare advocacy campaigns from 2008-2010.

Justin Moore MD FACP is an endocrinologist who left academic medicine in 2014 to do consulting work at the clinical-public health intersection with Double Arrow Metabolism. It's in this role that he serves as a consultant with Health ICT and chairs the Chronic Disease Alliance of Kansas. He's also an endocrinology consultant with RubiconMD and a volunteer endocrinologist with Guadalupe Clinic, where he tends to stop more medications than he starts. He believes chronic diseases should fall at the top of the patient's problem list at any given visit, not at the bottom. He believes that health is hard to define and harder to measure, but that it's easier to achieve than people think. He believes true health saves money. He's an evangelist for transportation by bicycle.

Lisse Regehr is President and CEO of Thrive Allen County, with a mission to support and encourage programs, policies and resources that promote access to healthcare, healthy lifestyles, and positive community conversation for the well-being of Allen County, Kansas, residents. She previously served as the Deputy Director of Outreach and Advocacy for the organization. In that role she oversaw all aspects of communication for the organization and was instrumental in helping that county reduce its uninsured rate from 21% in 2013 to 9% in 2017 – one of the biggest improvements in the state.

Shelley Rich is serving as the Director of the Health & Wellness Coalition which is supported by the Greater Wichita YMCA. The Health & Wellness Coalition of Wichita was established in 2004 and engages community members in healthy eating and increasing physical activity through program and policy implementation with the goal of attaining health equity and the highest level of health for all people.

Shelley is responsible for effectively implementing strategies required to meet funding expectations and reporting requirements for the Kansas Health Foundation Healthy Communities Initiative: Improving Health Equity in Kansas. Health equity is the attainment of the highest level of health for all people. Achieving health equity requires valuing everyone's equity with focused and ongoing societal efforts to address avoidable inequities, historical and contemporary injustices and the elimination of health and health care disparities. Grant activities focus on engaging the community to identify what health issues they determine to be the most prevalent and to identify partners who could best address the issues.

Professionally, Shelley is on the program committee for the Health Alliance, a community organization that promotes the work of the Sedgwick County Health Improvement Plan. Health & Wellness Coalition committee involvement includes chair of the Food Share and We All Eat task force, registrar for the Working Well Conference and co-chair of the Physical Activity committee.

Personally, Shelley enjoys spending time with her husband, daughter, son and English Springer Spaniel. They are active in sports and outdoor activities. Shelley enjoys exercising, cooking and knitting in her free time. She is an active member of Aldersgate United Methodist Church where she serves as the Lay Leader of the Healthy Congregation Team.

Shelley has a Master of Education from Wichita State University in Exercise Science and a Bachelor of Science from Kansas State University in Kinesiology.

Travis Rickford serves as the Executive Director for LiveWell Northwest Kansas, a regional non-profit with a focus on making Northwest Kansas a healthier place for all to live, work, and play. Travis has over ten years of experience working in community health. As a health advocate, Travis works with communities to build their capacity to create systems that improve the overall quality of life for residents in Northwest Kansas. This includes activities such as community engagement, building strategic partnerships, and project management. Travis also serves as an adjunct faculty member for the Political Science Department at Fort Hays State University. Travis holds a Master of Public Administration from the University of Missouri, a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Fort Hays State University, and a Graduate Certificate in Dialogue, Deliberation, and Public Engagement from Kansas State University. Travis serves as a board member for the Kansas Action for Children and local community foundation. Travis resides in Rawlins County, Kansas with his wife Melissa, son Ashton, and daughter Olivia.

Rabbi Moti Rieber has served as Executive Director of Kansas Interfaith Action and its predecessor organization, Kansas Interfaith Power & Light, since March of 2011. He is a graduate of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College in Wyncote, Pennsylvania. A life-long activist on peace, social justice, and environmental issues, Reb Moti brings a variety of pulpit, interfaith, and organizational experience to the work of Kansas Interfaith Action. Reb Moti and his wife, Suzy, live with their three children in Overland Park.

Julie Ross is currently the Early Childhood/ Pre-K Readiness/ At Risk Coordinator for Colby Public Schools, Colby, Ks. Prior to this, Julie taught kindergarten and first grade for 25 years in Colby, KS. She also was director of a preschool and daycare center in Liberal, Ks for 6 years. She and her husband, Robb have been in the education field for the past 35 years. They are also active in their church outreach programs and have a desire to help meet community needs. They have 3 grown children and are the grandparents of 7 beautiful, charming and talented children.

Blanca Soto immigrated to Southwest Kansas from Mexico during her late high school years in search of a better life. Being an immigrant in Southwest Kansas with limited English proficiency, she got to experience first-hand the challenges and barriers that the migrant community faces as they work towards social acceptance. Her desire to serve her community drove her to build a career in the nonprofit world. After working as a domestic violence, sexual assault and immigration advocate for 5 years, her desire to break the cycle of violence and poverty drove her to more preventative initiatives. For the past 10 years, Blanca worked in youth services, implementing prevention and education programs focused on at risk students. Blanca joined Kansas Appleseed in May 2019 as the campaign director for Southwest Kansas to ensure every Southwest Kansas resident is counted in the 2020 Census. Blanca's goals are to provide information and education about the census, and to bring awareness to the direct and indirect impact the census will have in our communities, along with how it contributes to local communities' ability to meet residents' needs.

Monica Vargas-Huertas, Esq is the Political Director and Special Projects Assistant to the President of the UFCW, District Union Local Two, a role which allows her to work closely with Local Union members working in the meat-packing, food-processing and retail industries providing immigration services, as well as engaging community members to develop strategic and long term partnerships with non-profits, government agencies and elected officials. With over 16,000 members in the states of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, Local Two is committed to improve the lives of his members and the communities they belong to.

Monica is a biliterate and bilingual attorney with Masters' Degrees in Government and Public Policy and in US Legal Studies from University of Connecticut, School of Law. She has over 15 years of experience working with grassroots around the country and overseas as well as advocating and implementing programs aimed to solve social issues affecting immigrants and individuals in disadvantage of different backgrounds.

Sheldon Weisgrau is the Senior Policy Advisor for the Alliance for a Healthy Kansas, a broad-based statewide coalition that works to improve the health of Kansans. Sheldon has more than 35 years of experience in health policy in the public, private, and non-profit sectors. During this time he has worked effectively to ensure the delivery of health care services in rural and underserved communities and to enhance the knowledge and engagement of health care consumers, providers, and policymakers. Sheldon earned his undergraduate degree from Cornell University and a master's degree in health policy and management from the Johns Hopkins University School of Public Health.

Marcus Winn is the Kansas Organizer for MORE2 (Metro Organization for Racial and Economic Equity). Marcus earned a Bachelor's degree in Political Science and Philosophy from Olivet Nazarene University and a Master's Degree in Theology from Catholic Theological Union. Marcus worked in nonprofit direct service and higher education before organizing. Marcus began organizing with neighbors while living in Chicago, working on a variety of issues such as affordable housing, immigration, and education. He co-founded an independent precinct organization in 2015 that continues to successfully pursue more democratic processes for local decision making and amplify the voices of local leaders. He moved to Kansas City in 2017, and joined MORE2 in early 2018, with a focus on voter engagement in Kansas.
